Hairpin Lace Loom: Hairpin lace is really fun to learn once you have mastered basic crochet. There are many patterns out there, but very few looms are available online. Also, many DIY versions are heavy and awkward or limited in width. I have created my own DIY hairpin lace loom. The one I used is a two-clip hairpin loom by Clover and retails for about $25 to $30. It is compact, sturdy and has an genius system for making long lengths of lace. You can also buy a cheaper loom that just has two prongs and two simple longer bars. Or you can make your own loom using knitting needles and cardboard tubes! Yarn: I used a quality light worsted weight Ultimate Guide to Hairpin Lace Crochet | Red Heart

Most crochet techniques don't require the purchase of any special tools, but hairpin lace is a little bit different. You will be able to use the crochet hooks that you already have, but you will also have to get your hands on a hairpin lace loom. Tutorial

If you are familiar with hairpin lace and you would like to create this scarf without the video, simply crochet 4 hairpin lace strips with your loom on the widest setting using the single crochet for a total of 230 stitches on each side. Once you have crocheted your strips, braid them together by grouping 5 loops at a time while zig-zagging up the length of the strip. The sides are finished
